This is swful. I'm so sorry. They should have showed it to you. We didn't find out about the need to wear shirt till you got to mexico. They sent me a picture and I said I hoped you didn't wear it cause it looked quite unattractive! but assumed they would discuss it with you. I should have confirmed they did. I will take responsibility and I am so so sorry. We will move forward with people knowing to tell you everything!

Got your preference for bilats which girls are executing

So, here I sit in the meeting surrounded by every other person dressed in a white shirt provided by the Mexicans. Patricia is not wearing the exact style that all others are but her own white shirt. But, since no one ever told me about this, and instead assumed I didn't need to know, I had no idea about any of this until I just walked into the large meeting in front of the entire press corps and am wearing a green top. So, what's my answer when asked why I think I'm different than all my colleagues and why I'm dissing

I am sick of people deciding what I should know rather than giving me the info so I can make a decision. This really annoys me and I told Monica I just didn't understand
