I know, I was getting increasingly irritated at Gowdy last night. I don't know the basis for him saying that.

We certainly asked her. She said she did it for convenience, because she wanted one system for email. We also asked those close to her - Mills and Abedin specifically - who told us the same thing.

[redacted] but we can find the references in the 302 which discuss it.

Though not in the 302, at the end of the interview, she apologized to us for the work and effort it created for the FBI. She said words to the effect of, I'm sorry this has caused so much work and expenditure of resources by the FBI. I chose to use my own server out of convenience; it proved to be anything but.

Do you know if Gowdy is right that FBI didn't ask Clinton about her intent? And is that weird?
