Muslim Candidate Abdul El-Sayed Killed Over a Quarter of the Dogs Put Down in the Entire Country in 2015

Abdul El-Sayed wants to be Michigan's next U.S. senator. The progressive darling just clawed his way through a bitter Democratic primary. Now the record he once bragged about is staring voters in the face. And it stinks of blood and feces.

From 2015 to 2017, El-Sayed ran the Detroit Health Department. That put him in charge of the city's Animal Care and Control operation during some of its ugliest years. According to records obtained by the Daily Mail, nearly 4,680 dogs and cats were euthanized while he held that post.

America First Report

America is a Christian nation. The America First Report intends to remind the world of this because in order to be truly "America First" we need to remember that honoring God is our primary path as a nation.

In 2015 alone, the shelter killed 1,988 dogs and 272 cats. That was more than a quarter of every dog put down in the entire county that year. The live-release rate sat at a miserable 20 percent. Four out of five animals that walked through those doors never walked out.

A former animal control officer named Brittany Roberts called the place a “dog slaughterhouse.” She filed a whistleblower lawsuit describing cages coated in feces, urine backed up through clogged drains, rats and roaches, sick animals left without care, and dogs routinely killed without even being scanned for microchips.

She said she was fired for speaking up. The city settled with her for $63,000 in 2016.

Photos she provided showed dogs lying in their own blood, vomit, and waste. One animal was left for dead after being hit by a car. Roberts later found it still alive, eyes rolling back. Staff used a wheelbarrow to haul the bodies to the freezer.

El-Sayed knew the problems. At a protest that October he called it a “systematic failure.” Then in a 2017 ABC News interview while running for governor, he pointed to his record and claimed his team had “rebuilt the animal control system.”

Rebuilt it? The numbers tell a different story. Another 1,056 dogs and 29 cats died in 2016. In 2017 it was 1,404 dogs and 13 cats. The save rate did climb to around 60 percent by the end. That is still a lot of dead animals under a man who now sells himself as a compassionate progressive.

At last, a conservative news aggregator that does not bow to the woke right.

His campaign now insists this was “the most significant humane-care turnaround in Michigan.” They claim nearly 80 percent of animals found loving homes under his changes. The public numbers do not match that rosy spin. And Detroit Animal Care and Control still refuses to release its full euthanasia data to this day.

This is the same El-Sayed who lectures America about healthcare for all and justice for the vulnerable. Yet under his watch, helpless dogs and cats suffered in filth and died by the thousands.

Scripture reminds us that the Lord preserves both man and beast. His tender mercies are over all His works. A righteous steward does not look the other way while creatures suffer.

But as a Muslim, El-Sayed has a very different perspective on dogs, which are considered “najis,” or ritually impure.

Michigan voters are about to decide whether this man belongs in the United States Senate. The radical left is already treating him like a hero. Regular people who actually love their dogs might feel differently when they learn what happened on his watch in Detroit.

He can claim the system was broken before he got there. He can point to a new director and a bigger budget. He can call it a turnaround. The bodies still stacked up. Nearly five thousand of them.

You may have noticed some conservative sites and shows have dropped MyPillow as a sponsor. They're getting more money from others so they cast Mike Lindell aside. We will NOT stop supporting MyPillow or MyStore. Please use promo code “JDR” to support them AND us.

That is not leadership. That is a record. And it is now public.

Starting the Day With a Scripture-Inspired Roast Helps Center Your Thoughts on Eternal Truths Amid Temporal Pressures

The world can seem chaotic, especially right after we wake up. Many believers start their mornings reaching for something familiar — a hot cup of coffee — yet end up settling for mediocre brews that do little more than deliver a caffeine jolt. The daily grind of life, with its endless distractions, news cycles, and responsibilities, can leave even the most faithful feeling spiritually parched alongside their physical fatigue. What if your morning ritual could do more than wake you up? What if it could ground you in truth, nourish your body with exceptional quality, and quietly advance a kingdom purpose at the same time?

That's the promise — and the reality — behind Promised Grounds Coffee. This Christian-founded company doesn't just roast beans; it approaches every step as an act of worship and discipleship. By selecting only the top 10% of specialty-grade beans, ethically sourced from dedicated farmers in Central and South America, and small-batch roasting them with reverence in Austin, Texas, Promised Grounds delivers what many describe as the best coffee available — never burnt, never bland, but rich with origin stories and layered flavors that honor God's creation.

From the vibrant Psalms 27 Roast (a light, bright medium option) to the bold yet peaceful 2 Timothy 1:7 Decaf, each bag carries a Scripture verse that turns your daily pour into a gentle reminder of faith. And through their Ounce Per Ounce Promise, every ounce of coffee you enjoy provides an equal ounce of clean water to families in need via partnership with Filter of Hope — literally brewing hope for body and soul, one cup at a time.

The challenge for today's Christians runs deeper than finding a decent cup. In an age of convenience-driven consumerism, it's easy to support companies that dilute values or remain silent on matters of faith. Many believers want their everyday choices — from what they drink to how they spend — to reflect discipleship rather than just convenience. Promised Grounds solves this by weaving Christian excellence into the entire process: beans nurtured with prayerful stewardship by farming families, roasted as an offering rather than a commodity, and packaged with Bible verses to encourage a mindset of gratitude and purpose from the first sip. Reviewers consistently praise the smooth, rich profiles — whether enjoyed black in a drip maker, iced on a warm day, or shared in fellowship — noting how the quality stands toe-to-toe with premium secular brands while delivering something far more meaningful.

This integration of faith and flavor addresses a real need in Christian households and ministries. Busy parents, church leaders, and remote workers alike report that starting the day with a Scripture-inspired roast helps center their thoughts on eternal truths amid temporal pressures. The coffee's exceptional character — bright citrus notes in lighter roasts or deep chocolate undertones in bolder ones — comes from meticulous selection and careful roasting that respects the bean's natural gifts rather than masking them. It's the kind of coffee that elevates a simple quiet time, fuels productive workdays, or sparks meaningful conversations when shared at Bible studies or outreach events. And because it's ethically sourced with integrity, every purchase supports sustainable livelihoods for farmers who treat their crops like family harvests.

For those leading churches or small groups, the impact multiplies. Promised Grounds offers bundles and options perfect for hospitality ministries, turning ordinary coffee service into an opportunity to point people toward the living water of Christ. Imagine greeting visitors with a warm cup whose very bag carries God's Word — a subtle yet powerful witness that aligns with the Great Commission. The company's Texas roots and commitment to "brewing hope" resonate especially with believers who value American enterprise paired with global compassion.

Of course, quality alone isn't enough if the experience feels out of reach. Promised Grounds keeps it accessible with practical perks like free shipping on orders over $40, sample sets for discovering favorites, and thoughtful add-ons such as faith-themed mugs. Whether you prefer whole beans for fresh grinding, grounds for convenience, or even bulk options for larger households and ministries, the result is consistently superior coffee that makes discipleship feel integrated rather than added on.

As you consider how to align even the smallest habits with your walk with God, Promised Grounds Coffee stands out as a refreshing solution. It tackles the dual problems of subpar daily sustenance and disconnected consumption by offering a product that genuinely excels in taste while advancing a mission of clean water, farmer dignity, and scriptural encouragement. Believers who make the switch often describe it as more than a beverage upgrade — it becomes part of their rhythm of gratitude, a daily invitation to remember that every good gift comes from above.

If you're ready to transform your mornings (and perhaps your church gatherings) with coffee that honors both exceptional craftsmanship and Christian values, I encourage you to explore what Promised Grounds has to offer. One sip at a time, you'll be nourishing your body, refreshing your spirit, and participating in something far greater — all while enjoying what truly is among the best coffee available.
